U.S. BANKRUPTCY COURT
ST. PAUL, MN

22-January-2012

Judge Dennis D O'Brien
232 Warren E. Burger Federal Building and US Courthouse
316 North Robert Street
St. Paul, MN 55101

Dear Judge O'Brien,

I'm writing to the court concerning the bankruptcy case of Israel and Jennifer Mckinney (case #11-61215). There are several discrepancies in the Mickinney's bankruptcy filing concerning their income; specifically Jennifer Mckinney's income.

First, Ms. Mckinney states her primary business is her photography business and blog. However, she has allowed the domain to expire making it impossible for her to derive income from it.

The bug problem persists at our house, even though for a while we thought it was over and even now it's under control. It's a big frustration, and our landlord sadly refuses to help. We've been taking care of it the best way we know how and have been trying to come to a fair and agreeable solution. Some big decisions about how we will move forward from here though will be made soon. What is best for our family? That's my focus.

Lulie still hasn't given birth. I honestly cannot believe it. I dream about her, the other night it was that I was able to watch her give birth. She is so wide, I feel terrible for her. Except that I praise her when she holds off; it won't be fun for anyone if she gives birth during the bitter cold we're experiencing lately.

To sign up for any class, please email me at contact.mckmama \(at\) gmail.com. Use the name of the workshop(s) you are interested in as the email subject. First come, first served! Payment is due via PayPal when you sign up. I've give you the scoop on that and more details when you write. Also, I'll try to update this post a few times today with how many people are already in each workshop so you'll know which ones you can still get into.

Hope to see you soon!

These are just a handful of "misunderstandings" stated, or not stated as the case may be, in the McKinney's paperwork. I implore the trustee to dig deeper into the McKinney's actual finances before considering discharging their bankruptcy.
